MA Theology, Imagination & Culture

Theology is expressed through signs, symbols, metaphors, myths and stories. Drawing upon resources from both sides of the Atlantic, this programme offers an interdisciplinary examination of such theological expressions to develop a fuller picture of how culture shapes our experience of God's work in the world.

Throughout the course, we develop creative ways of imaginatively engaging with theology and culture to deepen theological understanding and enliven faith practices.

All programmes are suitable for those who live outside the area. The normal admission requirement is a good honours degree in a relevant discipline although this may be waived for appropriately experienced applicants.

Study Structure

The mix of classroom and home-based study allows students to pursue a qualification alongside personal and professional responsibilities.

Learning is collaborative in small groups on four-day intensive residential courses offered throughout the academic year. In this way, students benefit from close contact with tutors, lecturers and classmates.

MA students usually complete six modules over two years and a dissertation in the third.

Classes and additional assessed work are credit-rated for students planning to go on to a research degree.

"Studying (at Sarum) turned out to be a life-changing experience. My outlook on everything opened up as a direct consequence and I am a different person."

Harry, theology graduate

Core Module

Theology and Human Culture

Explore the relationship between theology and culture through creative and critical perspectives.

Mandatory Module

Text, Interpretation and Imagination

Examine the relationship between Biblical texts, different modes of interpretation and the creative engagement with the arts.

Optional Modules

These run every other year and examine a particular aspect of theology in greater depth so that students can shape a programme of study to suit their own interests and concerns.
